COVID-19 has been the largest setback in global health over the past 75 years.

Global life expectancy has increased by 22.7 years between 1950 and 2021, and the impact of COVID-19 has been felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories.

Mortality outcomes during the COVID-19 pandemic were not solely determined by socio-economic factors; access to vaccination, public policies, and individual behaviours all influenced the severity of the pandemic and outcomes across the COVID-19 spectrum.

COVID-19 has been the largest setback in global health over the past 75 years.

Global life expectancy has increased by 22.7 years between 1950 and 2021, and the impact of COVID-19 has been felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories.

Mortality outcomes during the COVID-19 pandemic were not solely determined by socio-economic factors; access to vaccination, public policies, and individual behaviours all influenced the severity of the pandemic and outcomes across the COVID-19 spectrum.

COVID-19 has been the largest setback in global health over the past 75 years.

Global life expectancy has increased by 22.7 years between 1950 and 2021, and the impact of COVID-19 has been felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories.

Mortality outcomes during the COVID-19 pandemic were not solely determined by socio-economic factors; access to vaccination, public policies, and individual behaviours all influenced the severity of the pandemic and outcomes across the COVID-19 spectrum.

COVID-19 has been the largest setback in global health over the past 75 years.

Global life expectancy has increased by 22.7 years between 1950 and 2021, and the impact of COVID-19 has been felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories. The impact was felt across the planet and varied substantially among countries and territories.

Mortality outcomes during the COVID-19 pandemic were not solely determined by socio-economic factors; access to vaccination, public policies, and individual behaviours all influenced the severity of the pandemic and outcomes across the COVID-19 spectrum.